Cultivation and harvest process

Our private owned olive groves of over 6500 olive trees are assuring continuous production of green olives each year.

- The cultivation process is vertically integrated.
- There is fully controlled quality assuring full traceability from the field to the finished product.
- Maximum environmental protection is achieved through specialization with integrated management systems like natural fertilizers, water economy through timer and controlled irrigation systems.

The cultivation is under the care of the Krinos Olive Center of the AMERICAN FARM SCHOOL, which has a Memorandum of Collaboration with the US Davis Olive Center at the University of California.

One, unique in Europe agricultural program for olive groves developed in our company's olive groves. The name of this Application of Intelligent Agriculture project is "giasense", and the whole process keeps YANNI'S OLIVE GROVES as a model-pilot company

Harvesting is done only by hand and the green olives are transported within a few hours in ventilated plastic crates on the premises of the sorter. There, they are placed on the production belt and carefully are checked only by hands and only the best remain waiting for the next stage. Immediately after, the olives are transported in large, ventilated plastic tanks to the olive oil mill for extra virgin olive oil production or to the olive processing plant for olive production.
